Gas Station Fight Carried to Court by Newcombe Co.

Decision of Zoning Board of Appeals in Denying Permission to Extend Oil Station at Delaware Avenue and Broadway Sought to Be Reversed—Claim Action was Illegal.

The A. R. Newcombe Oil Corporation has secured a writ of certiorari from Judge G. D. B. Hasbrouck directed to the members of the Kingston Zoning Board of Appeals and citing them to appear before the court at 10 o'clock Saturday, February 6, on a regular special term of the supreme court will be held in this case. The members of the appeal board are Judge A. T. Clearwater, J. M. Watts, S. T. Levitt, C. J. Flannery and George E. Love.

By this action the Newcombe Oil Corporation seeks to gain permission to extend their oil station at the corner of Broadway and Delaware Avenue. The corporation some time ago made application to extend and enlarge its station but its request was denied on the grounds that the property was in the residential zone laid out on the zoning map. An appeal was taken to the zoning board but it, too, denied the permission. Several residents who own property in the location appeared in person before the board and opposed the application.

The Newcombe Oil Corporation sought its counsel Brinnin, Canfield and Elsworth, now goes to the supreme court to have the matter reversed, claiming that the city authorities were in error in denying application.

Claim Line Cuts House.

A few years ago the corporation erected an ornamental filling station at the corner lot and in 1921 extended its property holdings by purchasing the adjoining lot upon which stood a house. When the zoning map was made the line cuts diagonally through the house on the corner lot, making a portion of the house in the business zone and a portion in the residential zone. The use and adjacent property, the corporation claims, was bought before the zoning law was in effect and that it was bought for the purpose of extending the business. The intention of the company was to erect a large building of ornamental design to be used by the corporation for business purposes in connection with the gas station and to operate a restaurant in the building.

Contention of Corporation.

In attacking the decision of the zoning board of appeals the corporation contends that it owned the property in its entirety in 1921. The zoning law went into effect in 1925 and the property had been bought for the express purpose of business. The corporation denies the appeal board's decision that it deprived the owner of his rights to use the property for business as it had since 1921. Further, that the board of appeals in denying the application of the corporation did not comply with the provisions of law pertaining to rights of petitioner in its application. Petitioner also contends that the map and ordinance are unconstitutional and not completely and fairly measured and prepared, violating the places and properties had been and were in use at the time of the preparation and before adoption of the ordinance.

It is also contended that the zoning board of appeals in denying the application did not comply with certain provisions of the general city law. The corporation also contends that the zoning board of appeals also violated statements in a letter of the secretary of the board of public works, setting forth the grounds on which the board of public works recommended application of petitioner, and that in considering the statements in the letter and the attitude of the corporation counsel they assumed a position at variance with the petition which was unjust and illegal, and in violation of the petitioner's right to use premises and property as a business property for which it was designed by ordinance and map.

'Boy Friends' May Testify Monday

At Diary Kept by "Peaches" Before Her Marriage Is Admitted—Her Former "Boy Friends" With Her Called to the Witness Stand.

New York, Jan. 28 (AP).—Twelve former "boy friends" of the former Frances "Peaches" Heenan are scheduled to testify against her when the Browning separation trial opens at White Plains Monday.

Counsel for Edward W. Browning, wealthy realtor, announced yesterday that the "boy friends" are chief among an array of 100 witnesses who are ready to support Browning in his fight against his girl wife.

While his legal battery was preparing a counter bombardment of "Peaches" charges, Browning yesterday invited newspaper men to his office to discuss the case as he saw it.

He reiterated his denial of his wife's charges of cruelty; called himself a victim of "too much mother-in-law"; expressed determination to keep his ten year old adopted daughter, Dorothy Sunshine, out of the litigation, and declared a reconciliation with his wife to be impossible.

Peaches has killed my love for her," he said. "There will positively be no reconciliation. I don't see how I could possibly be expected to forgive Peaches for what she had done to me."

Browning ridiculed testimony of Mrs. Heenan that he had asked her to live with himself and Peaches.

"Did you ever hear of a sane man," he said, "who invited his mother-in-law to stick around day after night? I think not. Neither was Mrs. Heenan compelled to live with us because she lacked any other domicile, for I had bought an establishment for her."

A brief seeking admission as evidence of a diary kept by Peaches before her marriage is being prepared by the Browning counsel. If the diary is admitted, Peaches' former "boy friends" will be called to the witness stand.

Slayer Ready to Search for Torso

William Coffey Confesses He Slew Mrs. Hattie Hales and Offers to Lead Officers to Burial Ground.

Platteville, Wis., Jan. 28 (AP).—William Coffey, handcuffed to the wrist of a deputy sheriff, stepped from a snow sheeted automobile here today ready to lead officers to the burial ground of Mrs. Hattie Hales, the woman he took in bigamous marriage, slew and whose body he then dismembered and placed in shallow graves.

Through a blizzard that made progress slow, the motor caravan fought its way through the night from Mauston, where Coffey was held and where he made two confessions: that finally centered the search for the missing Lacrosse department store buyer in this county.

Coffey offered to take the officers at once to the snow filled woods in which parts of the woman's body are buried, but R. M. Orchard, Grant county district attorney, and Sheriff Lyall Wright, who obtained Coffey's confessions, decided to wait until later in the day.

When told that the torso of a body had been found in the woods near here yesterday by volunteer searchers, Coffey seemed relieved.

"It is probably part of her body," he said. "I am glad it has been found. At last there is evidence that I am telling the truth. I am anxious to show the officers where the remainder of the body is buried."

Broadway Theatre Structural Steel Work Inspection

Public Invited to Inspect Work on New Theatre Saturday Afternoon and Sunday Morning.

The steel work of the new Broadway Theatre has been placed in position and the large steel derrick used in erecting the structural steel is being dismantled today. There was 450,000 pounds of structural steel used in the construction of the theatre.

Today Harry Lazarus, president of the Kingston Theatre Corporation, which is erecting the theatre, stated that the general public will be permitted to inspect the theatre Saturday afternoon between the hours of 1:30 and 4:30 o'clock and on Sunday morning between 10:30 and 11:30 o'clock.

This invitation to the public to inspect the theatre is given so that any one may see the steel work before it is encased and will thereby gain an idea of the requirements necessary for the erection of a modern theatre. After it is encased, this very interesting feature of the structure will no longer be appreciated by those not familiar with such a building.

The roof is now being placed on the theatre and shortly the building will assume its finished appearance on the interior as well as the exterior of the structure.

What testimony Miss Mills is to give to help bolster the wealthy New York realtor's case against his young wife was not vouchsafed by James Dale, Browning attorney.

"We can't afford," he said, "to try this case in the newspapers but it may be said that Miss Mills will be an important witness for my client."

Stock Market Losses in Millions

Speculation in Wheeling & Lake Erie Finds Bear Traders Short—Transactions This Month Several Times the Outstanding Common Stock Capitalization.

New York, Jan. 28 (AP).—Huge losses which may run into the millions of dollars, have been sustained by "bear" traders on the New York Stock Exchange in what to all outward appearances today was a "corner" in the common and preferred stocks of the Wheeling & Lake Erie Railroad.

Brokers, who have been accumulating the stock, made an unexpected demand yesterday for deliveries of all shares purchased in recent markets. This caught the "short" interest unawares and they were forced to go into the market and buy stock or face the alternative of being "bought in" under Stock Exchange rules. In order to make deliveries in time, a number of cash transactions were necessary, as ordinarily deliveries of stock made one day are not delivered until the next, and Friday's transactions usually are cleared on Monday.

There are only 336,424 shares of common stock outstanding and the daily sales this week have ranged from 27,000 to 115,000 shares. Since the first of the year the total transactions have been several times the outstanding common stock capitalization of the road.

The usually high premium of 1 per cent, or $1 a share, was reported to have been paid today for the loan of the common stock in order to make a delivery against "short" sales. Yesterday, the premium was 1/16 of one per cent.

Both common and preferred stocks have been under steady accumulation for the past few weeks for reasons not disclosed, but believed to be in connection with consolidation plans. While the identity of the purchasers is not known, the road at various times has been mentioned as a possible connection with the Pittsburgh and West Virginia, New York Central, "Nickel Plate" and the so-called Loores fifth eastern trunk line system. Rockefeller interests are the controlling factors in the road's affairs.

British to Offer 'Generous' Terms

Main Difficulty Is That No Single Governing Body in China at Present Could Carry Out Any Guarantees.

Washington, Jan. 28 (AP).—While the United States awaits the reaction of the warring Peking and Cantonese factions to its peace overtures, extended to both in the form of an expressed willingness to negotiate new treaties with responsible delegates, interest here has turned for the moment to Great Britain now described as preparing to offer China "generous" terms in the hope of bringing order out of chaos.

Washington government officials are keenly interested in any plan that might be offered by the British, although they regard this country's position as somewhat different from that of England in regard to China, because of the latter's large concessionary interests there.

London news advisers picture the British press and public as impatiently awaiting official publication of the new proposals, which are understood to provide for the eventual surrender of the British concessions, including extra territoriality.

The United States also has signified its willingness to open negotiations for ultimate abandonment of all American extra-territorial privileges in China. In addition to working for immediate Chinese tariff autonomy, it now awaits proposals for such conferences, but it has not been indicated whether it would take any direct diplomatic steps to bring about a meeting in event the northern and southern Chinese factions fail to take advantage of its friendly offer.

One of the main difficulties confronting Great Britain is described as the fact that there is no single governing body in China at present from which it could expect the extension and carrying out of certain guarantees. This point also was mentioned in Secretary Kellogg's his Chinese policy statement. He said the only question facing the United States was with whom it might deal and that until the safety of American lives and property was absolutely assured in the Chinese civil war and other disorders, American naval forces would stand by as a precautionary step.

Describes Mail Train Robbery

Michael Andrews, One of Four Held in Connection With $65,000 Mail Train Robbery, Declares John Boyd Was "Stickup Man."

Nashua, N. H., Jan. 28 (AP).—Michael Andrews, one of four men arrested in connection with the $65,000 mail train robbery at Salisbury, Mass., last July, confessed today, police announced that he had taken part in the holdup.

In his story as given out by the police, he claims that John Boyd, under arrest at Galveston, Texas, was the "stickup man."

Andrews said that his father, John Andrews, and William Havourian, also under arrest, were in a waiting automobile while he and Boyd were on the train running from Newburyport, to Amesbury and that Boyd was the first to order the trainmen to hold up their hands. He said that he covered one of the men in the baggage car and Boyd the other and then Boyd picked out the mail sack and both men leaped from the train.

They went to the Andrews home here and in an isolated part of the city cached the loot.

Three weeks later they recovered the money and his father and Boyd split. Young Andrews admitted that he had received a generous portion. When he was arrested yesterday the police found $300 on his person, which he admitted was part of the loot.

Postal and police inspectors questioned John Andrews, the father, today, but he refused to admit any part in the crime. Authorities located some $1,200 at the Andrews home yesterday but there still is considerable money unaccounted for.

Wilson Expects To Win Seat

Believes Probe Will Show That He Was Elected U. S. Senator From Pennsylvania and Not Mr. Vore.

Philadelphia, Jan. 28 (AP).—William B. Wilson, secretary of labor under President Woodrow Wilson and Democratic opponent of William S. Vore for the United States Senate, believes the Senate's investigation of the Pennsylvania election will show that he was elected and not Mr. Vore as indicated by the official returns.

He so asserted last night in addressing a Jackson day dinner at which the name of Governor Smith of New York as a Democratic presidential possibility was received with prolonged cheering and Republican claims of nationwide prosperity were challenged.

Mr. Wilson said he was not prepared to give details of what he expected would be brought out in the senatorial investigation, but he told the diners that Mr. Vore would not take his seat and that he himself expected to be the next United States senator from Pennsylvania.

Pointing out that he had come to the Philadelphia county line from the rest of the state with 50,000 majority over his Republican opponent, and that he had 38,000 majority in the state outside of Philadelphia and Pittsburgh, Mr. Wilson asserted that the investigation would reveal "corruption and fraud" in these two entities and that "the chances are that the Vore majority will be overcome."

Florence Ward, national field director of home economics extension in the northeastern and Atlantic coast states, is scheduled also for the conference.

A Home Bureau banquet is planned for Thursday evening of Farmers' Week, and Miss Ward will speak then and the following morning, to tell of home demonstration work in the United States. Dr. C. E. Laid, state director of extension, and Martha Van Nesselaer, state home demonstration leader, are among the banquet speakers also. Prizes for the letters on "Changes I have seen in my home and community because of the home bureau" will be awarded at this time.

A. H. Mann, dean of the state college of agriculture and home economics, who recently returned from two years abroad studying rural conditions, is on the program to give an account of extension for women in Europe. Flora Rose, one of the directors of the college of home economics, will speak on hospitality in the farm home.

Wednesday of Farmers' Week will be alumni day for both the college of home economics and of agriculture. The alumni will gather for the annual Farmers' Week banquet that evening.

Bohemian May Claim His Place in World

When one doesn't know where his next dollar is coming from he may become a bohemian or a bandit. It all depends on his type of mind. The former alternative is that of the merry, misfit soul, the latter of the sinister, usually malevolent one.

The bohemian sort is good company if he hasn't drifted into predatory habits. He is always ready to entertain you with his mind and is cordial to your own efforts toward geniality. He is not too prone on your occasionally limping wit and his laugh is generous. We ought to value and cherish him more than we do, though he be a no-no-don't.

Everybody can't make money; and it takes so little to make this bright spirit happy. Usually he is tortured, but if he isn't he is something in the frequently harassed souls of those who are talented. Isn't the nature that "just runs you" a blessed one, meant to gladden a thousand day?

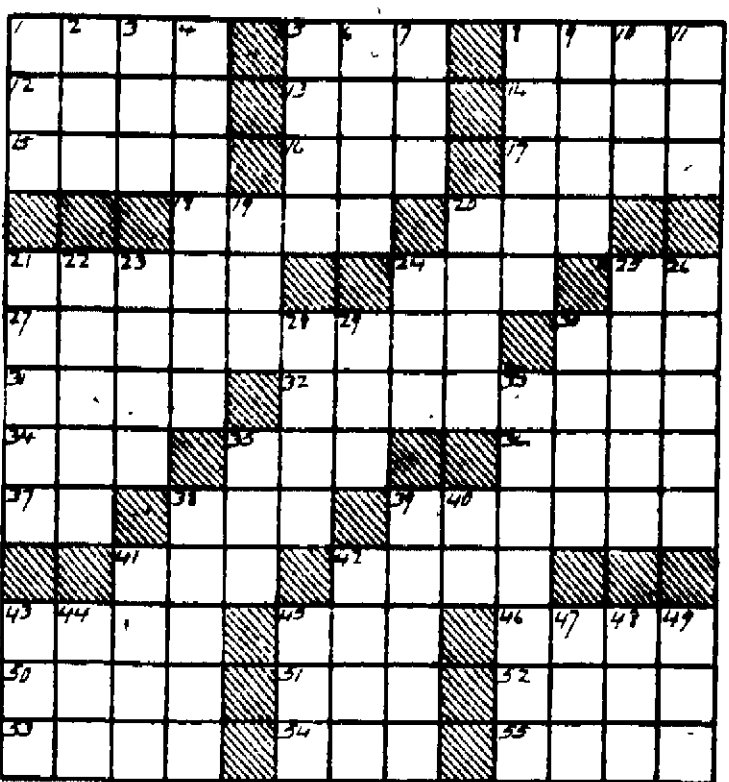

If his disposition is to lean somewhat on his friend, the man of wit, well, the oak can stand it. It is, in fact, what the oak is looking for and enjoying.—F. H. Collier in the St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

A QUESTION

After reading a few of Shakespeare's essays on chemistry, one wonders how long he would have as a modern used car dealer. It would give him a good laugh, we know, to see how considerably we modernize the old car. But the proof of a principle is in the machine—and the laugh would be on him, after all.

KINGSTON, N. Y., JAN. 28, 1927

At the present time bonafide offers from Southern power companies for the future development and operation of Muscle Shoals are before Congress, and these offers have been recommended for acceptance by Congressional committees duly appointed for that purpose. And yet months and years are frittered away in order that every Tom, Dick and Harry may express his personal views, although he may actually know nothing about the situation. In the meantime, Southern states suffer and the taxpayers of the nation lose millions which would be paid into the federal treasury. If our lawmakers could act instead of play politics.

EXTREMES NOT DESIRED.

"Free trade" and the "protective tariff" are terms which have furnished endless cause for argument. One man claims the protective tariff ruins the farmers, while his opponent will state free trade would depopulate the rural districts. There must be a common ground between these two extremes.

Take the production of sugar beets as an illustration. If there was no tariff on sugar, it has been demonstrated time and again that when Cuban sugar prices are extremely low, the American beet sugar factories could not exist. This means that the sugar beet farmer could not live, and that this valuable and necessary domestic crop and industry would be destroyed.

It looks like good business to give reasonable protection to any crop or industry which needs it in order to compete on an equal footing for the home market with cheap labor, foreign production.

"WAR BIRDS" CONFESSIONS.

Among the revelations of "disillusionment" following the World War, the anonymous chronicle written by a young man in the aviation service, and published under the title of "War Birds," is more than ordinarily interesting. It proves, for one thing, that even the brave are preyed upon by fear, and conveys the impression that the nerve-shattering horrors of modern war are inconceivable by those at a safe distance. This young American aviator, apparently from the South, who trained in England, introduced eggnog to receptive British officers, went into the flying service in France, and after eleven months was shot down within the German lines, found reason to reach the conclusion that it was "those four years of misery and damnation" that had caused an elderly relative, formerly a captain in the Confederate army, ever after to be "a little different from other men."

What his own experience was doing for him he thus indicates: "My nerves are all gone. It's not the fear of death that's done it. I'm still not afraid to die. It's the eternal flinching from it. Here I am 24 years old; I look 40 and feel 90." We are apt to picture young soldiers, especially those in the aviation service, as merry, devil-may-care, living in the moment. This one was always looking toward the expected crash and death. "It is only a question of time before we all get it. At night when our Colonel calls up to give us our orders my ears are aflame until I know what we are to do next morning. Then I can't sleep for thinking about it all night." And further:

It gives me a dizzy feeling every time I hear of the men that are shot. And they have gone so fast I can't keep track of them; every time two pilots meet it is only to swap tales of who's killed. When a pilot takes sick, fingers in bed a few days, dies and is buried on the field day, it all seems regular and they pass on to the Great Beyond in an orderly manner and you accept their departure as an accomplished fact. But when you have lunch with a man, talk to him, see him go out and get in his place in the prime of his youth and the next day some one tells you that he's dead—it just doesn't sink in and you can't believe it, and the officer it happens the harder it is to believe. I've lost over a hundred friends, who tell me that but to me they aren't dead yet. They are just around the corner. I think, and I'm still expecting to run into them any time. . . . The English have all turned out to be the same. I used to think that it was only the French, but now it's hard for me to believe that men over become even a ghost. I have a sort of feeling that he stays just as he is and simply jumps behind a cloud or steps through a mirror.

Shortly after writing the above the "great adventure" came to the young American "war bird" himself. Twenty miles behind the German lines his plane was shot down and he "jumped behind a cloud" or "stepped through a mirror." One would like to follow him for enough to know whether, with reviving consciousness, he, too, felt as if he were "just around the corner." This is but one of no few private chronicles indicating that the ever-mounting toll of death in the thick of war tends to bring new thoughts or realizations, as if the very lurid glare of bursting shells conveyed a glimmer of new light into hitherto impervious or indifferent minds.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

James W. Barton, M.D.

(Registered in accordance with the Copyright Act.)

WHERE DO YOU LIVE?

Where do you live?
I am tempted to ask that question because your physician will tell you that it isn't the city, the neighborhood, or the house that is your living place, but that body of yours, particularly your mind.
And where you live and how you live there, really determines your life. A writer in a medical journal has this to say, "At its worst life sometimes seems to be a questionable boon, at its best it is a noble gift of the high Gods."

"Most of us carry on between these two extremes and are grateful for whatever will lift us, even for a moment, to a height where the air is pure and the view broader than the air is at the level where we ordinarily live."

It was the expression "where we ordinarily live" that I thought was worth a second thought.

You and I live our lives more or less free from pain, more or less on the mountains of hope, or in the valleys of despair, according to our view of life at the time, and also the height or depth of our courage.

Now the condition of our stomach, liver, intestine, circulation, can all have a tremendous bearing upon our outlook on life because the cells of the brain, and the brain gives us our outlook on life, must be nourished, and wastes removed, by the blood that circulates throughout the body. And this blood will be just what a good liver, a good intestine, good teeth, and good heart will make it, or it can be the reverse if these organs are not doing their work properly.

A healthy individual is usually a hopeful individual.

This writer says "Most of us do not laugh enough; do not play enough; do not see enough visions."

How can anyone laugh, play, or see visions if his or her body is not doing its work properly?

And yet it is only too true that when an individual gets a real hold on himself, at peace with himself and his fellows, it can be reflected in his body, so that the impulses to his stomach and digestive apparatus, will be regular and of adequate strength, his heart will be stimulated to work more regularly and with more strength.

So you see your body can influence your brain, and your brain can likewise influence your body.

TODAY'S STORY IN NEW YORK HISTORY

By Frederic A. Godcharles

(Copyright, 1927, by the Author)

Sir Henry M. Stanley Who Led Great Expeditions Into Darkest Africa, Born January 28, 1841.

Sir Henry Morton Stanley, the Anglo-American explorer and journalist, and for many years of his eventful life a resident of the Empire State, was born near Denbigh, Wales, January 28, 1841.

His name was originally John Rowlands, and at the age of three years he was placed in the poor-house at Saint Asaph, where he remained ten years, making such progress that when he left the institution he was engaged as an instructor for children at Mold, Flintshire.

In 1857 young Rowlands sailed as a cabin boy on a vessel bound for New Orleans, where he was adopted by a merchant who gave him his name, but who died without making a will, thus leaving his adopted son penniless.

At the outbreak of the Civil War Stanley, who was then residing in Arkansas, enlisted in the Confederate army, but in the battle of Pittsburgh, April 16, 1862, he was taken prisoner, and when discharged volunteered in the United States navy and in less than a year became secretary to the admiral on board the ironclad flagship "Ticonderoga." During an engagement in which the "Ticonderoga" was under fire Stanley volunteered to swim a distance of 500 yards and attach a hawser to a Confederate steamer, and he performed the audacious feat with complete success. The prize was drawn out of the harbor, and Stanley was commissioned an ensign.

At the close of the war Stanley decided to remain aboard the ship, which had been ordered to Constantinople. In 1867 he joined an expedition under General Hancock, organized to suppress Indian outrages in the far west, accompanying the troops as correspondent for the New York "Tribune," and the Missouri "Democrat." His accounts of the expedition attracted much attention.

The New York "Herald" engaged Mr. Stanley in 1868 to go with Sir Robert Napier on his Abyssinian expedition, where he won more reputation as a journalist by sending his account of Lord Napier's victory to London in advance of the official dispatches. He represented the same paper in Spain during the Carlist War in 1868.

In October, 1869, he accepted the mission from the proprietor of the "Herald" "to go and find Livingstone," from whom no tidings had come for more than two years.

Stanley was given full control of the expedition, and after attending the opening of the Suez Canal, visiting Constantinople, the Crimea, Palestine, the valley of the Euphrates, Persia, and India, he set sail from Bombay, for Africa, October 12, 1870.

He reached Zanzibar in January, 1871, organized an expedition of 182 men, divided them into five parties, and set out for the interior of Africa. March 21. On November 10 he found Livingstone at Ujiji on Lake Tanganyika, when he had just arrived from the southwest.

Stanley furnished Livingstone with supplies, explored the northern part of Lake Tanganyika with him, and remained until February, 1872, when the veteran explorer refusing to abandon his enterprise until it was completed, set out on that journey from which he never returned. Stanley made his way back to the coast, calling thence, March 14, and reached England in July. The British association entertained him at Brighton, where on August 16, he gave an account of his expedition. On August 27, the queen gave him a gold snuff-box set with diamonds.

In 1874 Stanley set out on a second expedition under the auspices of the New York "Herald," and the London "Daily Telegraph." Reaching Zanzibar in the autumn of 1874, he learned of Livingstone's death and resolved to complete that explorer's unfinished work. He explored the equatorial lake region, circumnavigated for the first time Victoria Nyanza, discovered Shireeya River, and other places in the very heart of Africa, an account of which he gave in "In Darkest Africa."

In 1878 he traced the Congo River from its source to its mouth. In 1879 he set out for Africa the fourth time, accompanying the Belgian enterprise, which resulted in the development of the Congo Free State.

Stanley then returned to the United States and lectured. In 1884 he organized a relief expedition in search of Emin Pasha whom he had met in Africa, and escorted him to the east coast, discovering the Ruwenzori Mountains south of Albert Nyanza on the return trip. He reached England in 1886, then returned to the United States. He lectured here and in Australia the following year, when he returned to England.

In 1893-1894 he set in Parliament the North Lumbeth. He was knighted in 1899. He was recipient of many of the highest honors and decorations. Stanley retired to private life and died in London, May 10, 1904.

WHY

Intelligent Use of Paint Is Advised

The surest evidence of real thrift and prosperity is the proper preservation of tangible property. This applies to buildings of every type everywhere. A well-preserved structure is a reliable index to the character of the owner or occupant.

Good paint is the best preservative of all structural materials, wood, metal, concrete, brick and stone. Paint is the arch enemy of the ravages of time, rust and decay.

In the matter of rental properties the landlord is known by his "upkeep." The wise landlord keeps his buildings, although they may be in the actual use and possession of another, in good repair and well painted. He is known by his works and his property is always rented and its life of usefulness and profit will be long. The unwise landlord withholds unto himself property income at the expense of property upkeep—ultimate results: dissatisfied tenants, frequent vacancies, heavy depreciation and a staggering bill for repairs at the end.

But good renters or tenants should not leave it all up to the landlord. Simply because for the time being they are only renters and not owners is no reason for them to put away all pride and self-respect. They are owners by possession, under lease or rental agreement, and whether owned in fee simple or merely rented that place is "home" or "business home" for them. A little paint or a nail driven here or there when needed will do much to preserve and will be a big encouragement to the title owner to do even more in the way of upkeep than is "stipulated in the bond."—Chicago Post.

Why Nature Has Given Birds Various Colors

Many curious facts about the effects of particular colors and markings of birds, insects and other creatures in concealing them from their enemies have been collected by naturalists, and the theory of "protective mimicry" has been pushed far in some cases.

An interesting observation bearing on this subject is recorded by an officer of the Carnegie Institution. About 300 chicks of various colors and patterns were allowed to run at large in a pasture. In less than two hours crows had killed 24. The officer inspected the slaughtered chicks and found that they included 10 whites, 13 blacks, 1 coarsely mottled gray and buff, but not a single chick with "pecked" markings more or less like those of ordinary jungle fowl or game. This, it is thought, was due to the relative inconspicuousness of the pecked birds and indicated that the colors arising under domestication increased the danger to the others.

How District Got Name

The District of Columbia was named after Columbus. The circumstances under which the District of Columbia received its name are unknown. The name of the district is first mentioned, so far as records show, in an act approved by the state of Maryland in November, 1793, which refers to the "Territory of Columbia and the City of Washington." On May 8, 1796, congress authorized a loan for the use of "the city of Washington, in the District of Columbia." So far as we know, that is the first recorded use of the word in an act of congress.—Fathfinder Magazine.

Why Cook Cabbage Alone

Cabbage should not be cooked with meat because it destroys vitamin A. The potency of vitamin A is gradually reduced by ordinary cooking processes. For this reason, methods of cooking greens and other foods containing this vitamin have been revolutionized of late. Cabbage, spinach and similar foods should be cooked only long enough to make them tender and not enough to shrivel them. They should not be cooked with meats, for the time of cooking should be determined by the vegetable itself and not by any added material.

Why Soap Bubble Is Round

A liquid surface by virtue of the surface tension tends to become as small as conditions will permit, and a sphere has a smaller surface than any other solid of equal volume. This explains why a soap bubble is round. A soap-bubble has two surfaces, one inside and one out. A soap bubble has many mirror surfaces and light falling on it is reflected back and forth from them, so that there is interference among the various trains of light waves. This produces the variety of colors.

Why We "See" Stars

Stimulation of one of the nerves by a blow on the head is said to account for the common experience of "seeing stars" after a severe bump. This nerve carries the shock to the brain which interprets it as light, and when artificial stimulation is produced, as from a blow, the impression of a flashing light in the form of moving "stars" is conveyed to the brain.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Heaven is ever kind to us; she puts our bumps on our backs so that we can't see them.—Josh Billings.

HELD HIS HONOR
ABOVE LIBERTY

Man Who Went to Prison
Rather Than Confess Falsely Is Freed.

Little Rock, Ark.—Lester E. A. Yeager, Arkansas convict who attracted national attention because he put honor before freedom, spent the holidays at his home at Helena, Ark., a free man.

Yeager was pardoned by Governor Terral, the second complete pardon the governor has granted during his two years in office. The first was given to an aged prisoner an hour before he died.

Yeager, five years ago, rejected advice of his lawyers to plead guilty of a statutory charge brought by a fifteen-year-old girl and thereby get off with one-year sentence. He said he was innocent and refused to perjure himself, although it was apparent he would receive a long sentence if tried and convicted.

Yeager, a former deputy sheriff of Phillips county, became involved in a difficulty with W. P. Mansfield, and the latter was killed. Yeager was acquitted on the ground of self-defense. Six or eight months later a young daughter of Mansfield's widow accused Yeager as the father of her child. A year later she swore she had testified falsely and sought to have Yeager released.

21-Year Sentence.

Yeager was sentenced in 1921 to 21 years in the penitentiary. From that time on his case has been more or less in the public eye. Former Gov. T. C. McRae ran advertisements in Helena papers the day before the primary election in 1922 to refute last-minute reports that he had promised to pardon Yeager. This incident served to block all hope of clemency from McRae.

Terral was nominated out of a field of six candidates in 1924 in a campaign in which issues were somewhat complicated. After Terral won the Democratic nomination, which amounts to election, he chose to believe he had been nominated on a no-pardon no-parole policy. Early in his administration Terral said he would grant pardons if the trial judge, prosecuting attorney and all members of the jury said they believed they had made a mistake and convicted an innocent man.

Friends of Yeager took him at his word. The judge, prosecuting attorney and eleven of twelve jurors signed a petition for Yeager's pardon. The governor stuck to his proposition literally and declined to do more than grant Yeager a 30-day furlough. This was renewed once, but at its expiration Yeager returned to the penitentiary.

National Publicity.

It began to look as though the third executive, Gov.-Elect John E. Martineau, would have to face the Yeager dilemma, but at this point publicity beyond the bounds of Arkansas took a hand in the case. Early in November the matter was given wide publicity.

Soon the governor's foreign mail began to increase. So did Yeager's. Hardly a day passed that the governor did not get letters from residents of distant states begging him to pardon Yeager. A Hayden of Brooklyn went so far as to circulate a petition there with the intention of sending it to the Arkansas governor. It is said he obtained more than 100 names. He also wrote Gov. Al Smith, asking that official to use his influence with the Arkansas governor to obtain a pardon.

Governor Terral confided to newspaper men several weeks ago that he would give Yeager a pardon. Yeager, however, knew nothing of the contemplated action until he returned to the penitentiary from his daily labor and found the precious document. He bade his friends goodbye and left the institution immediately.

Yeager had received presents from several states, some of them being sent from poor people. One box contained several striped handkerchiefs. "You know," Yeager said, "I appreciate these presents, even the handkerchiefs, but I've formed such a dislike for stripes during the last five years that I had to give them away."

Newton, Kan.—It took a town woman to guess correctly the number of kernels of corn a starved rooster would eat in an hour's time.

Forthcoming Historical Pageant Recalls Time When They Were Brought to Kingston and Later Housed in Town of Rochester.

Here are a few words from a letter from Philadelphia, acknowledging the article from The Freeman, on the action of the Farm and Home Bureau, to do its bit, in preserving and disseminating the history of Ulster county, by means of a historical pageant, that he who runs (an automobile) may read. It shows the warm place in the hearts of its countrymen, the old county holds: "I appreciate your letter so much, and am very glad that some things are being done to preserve the memory of Ulster county and the dear old valley, that I know so well. As I have said before, it lives in my memory as nothing else lives there." In another place: "I am so thankful for this renewed interest in those things so dear to me, which seem half-forgotten." And this: "I am so glad that you are interested in the Old Fort near Kerhonkson. To me, it is the one place on earth. It is a part of my thought, my dreams, my life, with a deep felt sorrow of its passing. There is much history connected with the old place, which you did not mention. There were several hundred acres to it when it came to Joshua Dumond. He is buried on the hill, back of the house. I was looking for his grave last summer. He is the one who had the store, I am not sure where. I saw several day-books and ledgers, when I was a boy, which he kept, of his business in this store.

"The date on the house (1762) I think I know. It refers to the time the east end of the house was built on. At first it was but two-thirds its present size and had but two doors. "Anything that I can do in this matter, do not fail to ask me, for no one could be more interested in this old place than I am myself.

"I am in the government service." This is from a native of the Rondout valley, who left there as a mere lad to see what the world had in store for him. Note the closing sentence; how unerringly the old patriot blood carried him to his place, where he can give the same service to the public interests, as did those who first found the fertile Valley of the Rondout, a place to make their homes, on the then frontier of civilization, with all the dangers of Indian warfare to be faced.

The Old Fort has its portholes in the thick stone walls. The choice of this old residence, which shows in its interior fittings that it was a home of people of substance and good taste, for the resting place of the state records, under the direct care of Samuel Bayard, assistant provincial secretary and always under guard, was the result of the expected attack on Kingston, 1777. Bayard and the records had been brought to Kingston, from New York, with the understanding that he was to live in the house where they were. Four days before the burning, the records were loaded onto ten wagons and carried to safety. The action of the Provincial Committee of Safety in regard to these is preserved in their minutes. (Oct. 13, 1777, etc., etc.)

October 13, 1777, Colonel Paulding was ordered to send a captain's guard of militia, to guard the records and public stores at Rochester. They were to be guided by directions given by the committee: Hendrikus Hornbeck, Johannes G. Hardenberg and Comfort Sands, Esq.

That the records were housed in the east room seems certain, since it is said that they were placed in a room fourteen feet square. The house is eighteen feet deep, and back of the east room or record room is a bedroom. In that we may believe that the secretary slept, with a guard outside and in the attic above.

After Burgoyne's defeat, the archives of the state were returned to Kingston, guarded by a special detail of two hundred men. Samuel Bayard continued to act as secretary of the province throughout the war. Samuel Bayard was of Stuyvesant stock and connected with Ulster county families, all of whom were patriots.

Anna Stuyvesant, sister of Governor Petrus Stuyvesant, married in Amsterdam, in 1629, Samuel Bayard, who had been born in the early part of the seventeenth century in the old fortified city of Breda in Holland, the southern province of The Netherlands. His father and his family lived through the siege of Breda, and while refugees, afterward returned there. It was in Breda that Petrus Stuyvesant, after his appointment as governor of New Netherlands, married Judith Bayard, who was Samuel Bayard's sister. Samuel's son, Peter Bayard, died in Alphen, but a short distance from Leyden and Gouda. He married Blandina Kierstedt in New Amsterdam. After trying his luck in Delaware, where today his name is honored in that of our well known Senator Bayard, he cast in his lot with the Esopus settlement, though always retaining his home on Broadway, at the southeast corner of the present Exchange Place. His sister, Catharine, married Wilhelmus De Meyer, also active in affairs of the village on the banks of the Esopus Kill. And his daughter, Sara, married Abraham Van Gansbeek, whose daughter, Catharine, married Anthony Hoffman, and lived at the Mill Gate of the Stockade. Catharine De Meyer married Christopher Kierstedt, and their son, Dr. Hans Kierstedt, married Jane Hoffman, thus uniting these families; and Sarah Kierstedt married Martin Heermance, who also was of the old Stockade soldier blood.

Forms of Jasper

Jasper is an impure form of crystalline quartz. The color is usually red, brown or yellow, according to the amount of iron oxide contained in the stone. There is also a form of jasper which is dark green and opalescent. This is probably the quality spoken of in the Bible as one of the jewels on the breastplate of the high priest and as a foundation stone of the wall of the New Jerusalem.

Are you ready for it?

American Legion Christmas Report

Activities of Legion and Auxiliary Welfare Committees During Christmas Season Covered Wide Range.

The Kingston Post, American Legion Christmas Committee has submitted the following report:

Kingston, N. Y., Jan. 21, 1927. To the Members of Kingston Post, No. 159, American Legion and Auxiliary:

On the completion of our work followed out according to your instructions, we respectfully submit a report of the work of the Legion and Auxiliary welfare committees during Christmas time.

1. Kingston Post had two members in U. S. Veterans' Bureau Hospital No. 98 at Castle Point, N. Y., to whom we sent $5.00 in gold, a 1927 membership card, a book of fiction, 3 pairs of pajamas, a scarf, 6 linen handkerchiefs. $65 was sent to the same hospital for the army nurses who are patients there.

2. To the family of an ex-serviceman in Pine Hill we sent three sweaters, three boys' caps and three girls' woolen hats.

3. To one of our members in a local tuberculosis hospital we sent a plant, a book, a sweater and a woolen cap. To his mother at her home we sent a box of groceries and other provisions.

4. To one of our members who is a total disability confined to his home we sent a plant and a book.

5. One of our biggest things was to go into the Industrial Home on Christmas Day with the chairman of the committee acting as Santa Claus. There we found thirty-six children away from their fathers and mothers and it did the hearts of those on the committee good to act as foster parents to those children on Christmas Day. To each of the 15 girls in the Home we gave a woolen cap, no two of the caps being alike. To each of the 12 boys we gave a woolen cap and to the nine nursery children we gave each a pair of leggings. We gave no toys as the committee of the 8 and 40 gave each child a toy.

6. On Christmas Day we also went into St. Anne's Home on Broadway and found 10 children to whom we played Santa Claus, as we did at the Industrial Home. To three of the larger boys we gave each a woolen cap and a toy and to two smaller youngsters we gave each a toy. To each of the five girls we gave a woolen hat and a toy.

7. To the Benedictine Hospital, Kingston City Hospital and the City Home we gave each one a crate of oranges.

8. To the patients in the T. B. camp we gave $12 in cash for pro rata distribution.

9. To the families of three ex-servicemen we sent food and toys.

10. Last, but not least, was our visit to the Sacred Heart Orphanage at Ulster Park. There we found 194 girls. It was a heart touching sight to see how happy and elated those little girls were at the sight of Comrade Mattie Spina who played Santa Claus to them. To each girl, or orphan as we might call her, we gave a toy or clothing. For their further enjoyment after we had left we left them two tubs of Christmas candy and one crate of oranges.

To Sam Bernstein & Company and Rose-Gorman-Rose the committee extends on behalf of the post and auxiliary sincere thanks for the hearty cooperation given us. These firms gave a liberal discount on all goods purchased and donated many articles on their own initiative.

The committee also wishes to thank Commander Murphy and Comrade Castle for the use of their automobiles.

Gentlemen (or Ladies) Kingston Post No. 159 American Legion have done a wonderful work this past Christmas. They made happy the hearts and minds of two hundred and fifty young and growing Americans on Christmas Day. Perhaps my words will fall and fail to reach your ears, but your committee knows whereof it speaks, for they saw in actual experience how those unfortunate boys and girls responded to the toys and clothing you made it possible for us to give them. To those of you who are here for Christmas of 1927, remember these boys and girls again, and if possible, go deeper into this work.

Respectfully submitted,
EDWARD J. LUEDTKE,
MRS. CATHERINE LUEDTKE,
MARGARET McMANUS,
MRS. JENNIE McMANUS, Committee.

Petticoat Man's Garment
Originally (1600-1600) the "petticoat" was a short coat or garment worn by men under the long overcoat. Later (about 1620) the name was applied to the skirt of a woman's dress or robe. Modern usage refers to it as an undershirt.

Farmers' Incomes Still Below Par
 Industry in New York State Practically in No Better Position Than in Past Six Years—Crops Which Contribute to This Condition.
 Production on New York state farms has been ample during the year just past but the cash received from these products is far out of line with that received from other industries according to the state-federal crop report just issued from the New York State Department of Agriculture and Markets.
 Since 1920 the farmers as a whole in New York have been suffering from low prices for their products in comparison with the products of other state industries and the year 1926 has been no exception. In addition, the unfavorable weather during the fall exacted a large toll as well. Not all branches of farming have been severely depressed. Those depending largely upon livestock and its products have done fairly well. Feeds have been cheaper and this has lowered the cost of production of dairy, poultry and sheep products none of which, however, have sold high although milk has sold higher than a year ago.
 The farm values of some of the other major products have been so much below those of a year ago that the total value at the farm of thirty of the most important farm crops is only $250,085,000 compared with $289,000,000 in 1925 or a decrease in farm value of the crops of about $39,000,000.
Fruits and Vegetables.
 The largest decrease in values occur in the crops of apples, potatoes, corn, peaches, pears, grapes, beans, onions, winter wheat and oats, all of which show greater production in 1926 than in 1925 except hay, oats, wheat, pears and corn. Of these five which show a decline in production, hay, oats and corn are largely fed upon the farm where raised and never enter the market in their original form. It must be seen, therefore, that the majority of farmers depending upon any or all of the important cash crops of apples, peaches, pears, grapes, potatoes or beans will not have as large farm incomes as during the year 1925, which was not considered a favorable year for the New York farmer.
Some Exceptions.
 There are exceptions, however, in all sections of the state. The Long Island potato growers have done better than average. A large yield per acre was obtained and sold at good prices. The upstate potato growers have not fared so well. Their production was somewhat greater than last year but the average price has been considerably lower. Some of the apple growers with good roadside stands or local markets to supply have done fairly well but the most of the apple growers have fared far from well this year. Here and there a grape grower with a choice private trade has made money but the great majority of the commercial grape growers of the state have lost money on account of the immaturity of their fruit, heavy production and the consequent low prices.
 The unfavorable harvest weather changed the prospects for a large crop of beans to a small one of poor quality, many stained beans being found. The pear crop was generally light but the price was low on account of the large quantity of pears found in the competing pear growing states. The most important peach, the Elberta, was late and, on account of the unfavorable weather during the ripening season the color and quality of the fruit were generally poor. In addition to this, the Elberta peach followed crops of good color and quality from other earlier peach growing states and consequently the market was so poor that a large quantity went unharvested.
Corn and Buckwheat.
 The larger percentage of the corn grown in the state goes into the silo so that the immaturity of a portion of the crop was not a serious drawback and the yield per acre was fair. The buckwheat growers in the eastern portion of the state harvested their grain in good shape but a large number of growers in the remainder of the state lost a considerable acreage during the wet fall weather so that the production is lighter than last year, making the value of the crop less than a year ago. Many farmers lost a large percentage of their buckwheat, being unable to complete their harvest. In addition the wage which farmers have had to pay farm laborers has averaged somewhat higher than during 1925 which was the highest since 1920 and with the exception of 1920, the highest wage paid since 1866.
 Here and there throughout the state are bright spots where a farmer has made good money in some of the most depressed farming industries but the average farm income for the state is still low. As a whole, the farming industry in New York state at present is practically in no better position than it has been during the past six years which has been a period of great agricultural depression.

Art Copied From Nature
 Man's early inclination toward art frequently found expression through examination of various forms of nuts, and his drinking vessels were fashioned in imitation of the halved coconut or some other hard shell protecting the kernel. In India ancient dippers were made of nutshells, and specimens of antiquity are now on exhibition at the Indian museum, South Kensington, London. King Henry VII possessed a silver vessel made like a nut in 1428. Chinese carvers still work artistic devices on nutshells. In Tibet Buddhist priests often possess rosaries comprising more than 100 beads, all made from carved nuts.

 A novelist was present at a gathering of artists and during the evening was called upon to make a speech. "Gentlemen," he said, "as this is an assembly in which art is largely represented, I feel it incumbent upon me to say a few words on the subject of painting."
 "Speaking personally, my only efforts in that direction were on an occasion when I counselled our bath. My friends said to me, 'My dear fellow, it's no good your going in for painting unless you're prepared to stick to your work,' and," continued the author, "I did."

Your Income Tax
 A person may receive for his services compensation other than money, that is subject to the income tax.
 The fair market value of the thing taken in payment is the amount to be included as income. For example, if a clerk in a grocery store receives as part of his wages groceries or provisions, the market value of the merchandise must be reported by him as income. Compensation paid an employee of a corporation in shares of stock is to be treated as if the corporation sold the stock for its market value and paid him in cash.
 Promissory notes received in payment for services and not merely as security for payment constitute income to the amount of their fair market value. A taxpayer receiving as compensation a note good for its face value at maturity, but not bearing interest, may treat as income as of the time of receipt the fair discounted value of the note at such time. If the payments are met as they become due these should be included as income in respect to each such payment so much thereof as represents recovery for the discount deducted.
 Board and lodging when furnished as compensation for services must be included as income. Thus a hotel clerk who is given a room and meals as part payment for his services must report the fair value of such in his income-tax return.

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

(By The Associated Press.)

New York—Louis Vierge, who has been organist of the Cathedral of Notre Dame in Paris for 27 years, believes his blindness has brought him closer to the sound world of music. He has composed a Mass, six symphonies and 54 shorter pieces, using the Braille system. His work is translated into musical notation by Mme. Marie Richepin, niece of Jean Richepin, poet. M. Vierge is here to give concerts.

Morehead Bishop, England—Oliver Henry Wallop, late of Wyoming, is finding things tedious on his north Devon estate which he inherited as the Earl of Portsmouth. He is looking for something to do in order to pass the four or five years he must live here before taking his seat in the House of Lords and he can find little except the mere shooting of pheasants which is tame in contrast to his cow-punching.

New York—Lew Wallace, Jr., grandson of the author of "Ben Hur," has become a member of the Stock Exchange.

New York—That "African honking gander" described by Peaches as having been brought home by her husband is simply an African goose, says the present owner, Mrs. John H. Greaves of Staten Island, who has rejected offers for the A. G. to go into the movies.

New York—Mrs. Louis H. Hyman, who was an infant prodigy, is seeking a divorce. At the age of three she noted that a cow could not leap a fence, let alone the moon, called her mother a prevaricator and published an attack on Mother Goose. The child's mother, Mrs. Winifred Sakville Stoner, then became an antagonist of childhood fables. Also she has been an advocate of early marriage.

QUEER QUIRKS in HUMAN DESTINY

By HARRY R. CALKINS

The Importance of One Vote
BUT for the absence of one member from the hall of congress on a certain day in 1784, a measure would have been passed that would have prevented the American Civil war three-quarters of a century later. Thomas Jefferson, author of the Declaration of Independence and founder of the Democratic party, was the determined foe of the institution of slavery, which his party was later to defend. Jefferson even inserted a clause against the slave trade in the Declaration of Independence, but it was struck out.

When Jefferson introduced a measure in 1784 for the government of the southwest territory "ceded or to be ceded" to the United States, it was found that a clause prohibiting slavery in this new territory was included. The measure affected Kentucky, Tennessee and Mississippi, and later would have affected the vast territory comprised in the Louisiana purchase. The clause failed by one vote. It was known that a certain New Jersey member, who was absent that day, would have voted for it.

Slavery in those days was not looked upon with great favor by any large section. New England states were rapidly emancipating the slaves within their borders, and in 1808 a federal law was passed prohibiting the slave trade. It was thought that slavery would gradually die out even in the South.

Then Whitney invented the cotton gin, which separated the seed from the fiber, and cotton took on new value. It became, in fact, the most important American crop, and slave labor could be effectively employed in raising it. The South now became more warmly attached to the institution than ever before, and the conditions that were to bring on the Civil war speedily developed.

Had the New Jersey opponent of slavery only been present on that day in 1784, the negro as property would have been confined to a few seaboard states in the South and slavery would have been well on the way toward extinction.

Indian Fresh Barmen
Must Have Overlooked
About the year 1890 Mohammed Barmen, a celebrated dwarf, and the center of much interest, and for many years later the pet of the districts around Calcutta, because of what were described as his amiable conduct and pleasing manner.

Mohammed was born at Benares in 1890. At birth he gave no indication that he would be a dwarf. His parents and his brothers and sisters were all rather above the medium height, and he himself was not considered a small child. But soon it was discovered that, although his parents and brothers were rather above the average, he did not increase in size as other children did and never in his life stood more than 37 inches in his shoes.

One of his English friends took him to England, where he was the subject of even greater interest than in India. He had "very easy, unassuming manners, was able to converse in English and was remarkable for his gentlemanly deportment."

ELEANOR GUNN ON FASHIONS

A Slightly Tailored Suggestion is Often Introduced for Evening—For Instance, a Beaded Belt.

Paris.—There is no embarrassment in a French restaurant, if two or even three women meet, each wearing the same type of dress or hat. French gowns are more or less like a signed painting by a good artist. One feels complimented, rather than repelled, by the idea that one's costume has been duplicated. It is a confirmation of judgment and a good indication that one's clothes come from good houses. They may, or course, be copies, for it is the smaller houses in Paris today that are the busiest.

Certain dresses one is sure to encounter everywhere. They become more or less like familiar faces. Chanel's heavy, dull black lace is one of them. It has a two-tiered skirt, with circular flounces. These are set on a low, straight lace top. The back has a deep, rounded décolleté, the front is square and has a long, circular lace scarf capable of several adjustments and cut in one with a fan-like arrangement of lace falling from the shoulder.

Bands of Black, Gray, and White Crepe, in Varying Widths, Are Effectively Combined in an Evening Gown. The Horizontal Effect Is Further Accentuated by Closely Spaced Lines of Small Crystal Beads That Cover the Dress. Black and White Are Paired in the Flowers.

Sometimes there is a straight, rather tailored-looking motif, with this dress, about two inches wide, with a seed pearl crescent-shaped buckle. It seems to be generally regarded as a new and an interesting notion to inject a little suggestion of the tailleur in evening dresses; as, for instance, the belt mentioned or some rather severe motif, such as a stitched yoke or pleats.

Several of the best-looking day dresses have some sort of yoke. One has a narrow one across the shoulder that widens into a straight band between the shoulders and extends more than half way to the waistline. When the blouse is gathered or altered to the yoke, it naturally helps in producing the supple blouse silhouette so much in current favor.

Capernaum Holy City to Early Christians

Naturally, Capernaum was a place dear to the early Christians, who loved to plant their feet where Jesus had once trod. A church was built there which was enlarged as years went on. When Hadrian permitted Jews to re-enter the Holy Land (about 137 A. D.) Capernaum was one of the cities granted to them. Though the name was changed from Ketha to Bethan to Teli Beth, the Hill of Beth, Hadrian is said to have given some assistance to the rebuilding of parts of the city destroyed by the Jewish Romans. By the year 639 A. D. the church had been enlarged into a basilica, and was said to cover the site of the house where Peter enjoyed the salvation of family life.

But the city never recovered from the destruction that Mohammed brought up on the once fertile plain of Capernaum, a strip of land on the northern side of the sea of Galilee (really a fresh-water lake) five miles wide by six miles long, or about which were when Jesus lived on earth, thriving cities, Chorazin, Bethsaida, Tiberias and Capernaum. To this day Mohammed held the sea and the district to be sacred, and it remains, as does the city where once Jesus dwelt, a place of desolation as though literally it had been "brought down to hell."

MONEY WAY

The delicate flavor of honey appeals to most of us. It combines with other flavors and takes the place of sugar in many dishes.

Honey Ice Cream.
—Take a pint of milk and cream, yolks of six eggs and a cupful of strained honey.

Heat the milk in a double boiler and cook until thickened with the honey and eggs beaten together. Then add the cream and a little flavoring. When the mixture is cool freeze as usual.

Honey Pudding.—Take one-half cupful of honey, six ounces of bread crumbs, one-half cupful of milk, one cupful of corn meal, two tablespoonfuls of baking powder, one-half teaspoonful of salt. Mix well and fold in the stiffly beaten whites. Pour into a well buttered baking dish and bake forty minutes. Serve from the baking dish.

Salad Dressing.—Mix well one teaspoonful each of salt and mustard, two tablespoonfuls of thick sweet cream, one tablespoonful of butter, three of honey, one-third of butter, of mild vinegar, the yolks of two well beaten eggs. Mix the dry ingredients, add the remainder and cook until smooth and thick.

Saved Honey Custard.—Take five eggs, one-half cupful of honey, four cupfuls of scalded milk, one-fourth of a teaspoonful of cinnamon and the same of salt. Beat the eggs, separating the yolks and whites, then mix together lightly, add the other ingredients and set in cups placed in hot water to bake. For a boiled custard take two cupfuls of milk, three eggs and one-half cupful of honey with a pinch of salt and flavoring. Cook in a double boiler.

Machinists' War Awards Being Paid

Former Shop Employees of Bethlehem Steel Company Receiving Amount Awarded by National War Labor Board—Many Men Have Disappeared.

Thousands of former machine shop employees of the Bethlehem Steel Company, Bethlehem, Pa., who have wages due them under an award of the National War Labor Board have failed, up to this time, to make application for the amount due from the War Department. Checks are being mailed at this time by the War Department for its share of the award, which amounts to 62.61 per cent of the total amount due them.

The award of the National War Labor Board covers time worked at the Bethlehem plant between August 1, 1918, and February 28, 1919. The increased wages represent the amount awarded when the employees requested the same wages on war munitions as was paid by the War and Navy Departments for similar work in the Navy Yards and Arsenals.

The dispute was referred to the National War Labor Board by the Department of Labor and Industry of Pennsylvania and Federal Department of Labor. After several years congress appropriated one and one-half million dollars to pay the War Department's share of the award. The Navy Department's share has still to be approved.

Due to the length of time since the award was issued, thousands of the employees affected have moved to all parts of the country. A total of about 38,000 machine shop employees and those of other departments are affected by the award. Over half have not applied and the time limit for filing the claims with the War Department expires on March 4, 1927. The International Association of Machinists, Room 304 Perkin Building, Allentown, Pa., will be pleased to furnish claim forms and necessary information to any persons affected by the award who will send request to the above address.

Grace and Charm in Wedding Gown

Bride May Easily Suit Personality With Models and Materials.

Fall and winter are always seasons of inspiration in the design of dress, especially in the bride's dress, this year more than ordinarily beautiful. Wedding gowns and trousseaus of both French and American authorship reflect very definitely the new feeling for femininity, for softness and subtle grace and elaboration in detail. Something of the ornate styles of long ago, as they are shown in old fashion plates, appear in the latest models of wedding raiment, and some of the most striking of these present engaging illustrations of picturesque costumes for the wedding. With the beginning of the social season the styles for brides became increasingly important and of compelling charm.

Some of the new fabrics brought out from time to time during the year are especially appropriate for wedding gowns. They are so varied that there is felicity of choice for each type of dress shown by the best designers. The tendency to depart from the traditional model, says a fashion writer in the New York Times, is evident in some of the wedding gowns that present delightful pictures of different sorts. The style of dress for a tall, stately bride has a suggestion of the medieval in line and trimming. The rich and splendid fabrics which have been brought out lately answer the purpose of this type of wedding gown, the velvets, moire, brocades and metal cloths in which couturiers are simply reveling. For the first time in years designers are using with lavish hands these beautiful formal wedding gowns, some of which are simply regal. Both the fabric and trimming are handled with restraint. Use of Moire Antique.

In a wedding gown made by an important Paris designer the material is moire antique of heavy quality and high luster, made after a quality style adapted to the convention of the present. The latest model is used for the skirt, which has the line in front and the long back, the skirt itself being gathered quite full after the manner of the robe de style with which we have long been familiar through the Louis period gowns. On the underskirt and bodice of this gown are bouffants of point de Venise, which form also a fitted border, like a frame on the long veil of fine Brussels net. The neck of this gown is cut in a deep V and the sleeves are long, flaring slightly over the hand. The trimming on this gown, the material of which is itself very beautiful, is designed with discretion and consists of a slender band of embroidery in pearls and brilliants which outlines the neck and forms a giraffe belt about the normal waistline, fitted in front. A spray of this embroidery in jumbled flower pattern is shaped like a tapering panel down the front of the skirt to the point of the knee. No flowers are to be carried with this costume, and a slender band with a medallion of pearls and diamonds over the bosom holds the veil in place.

Another of these wedding gowns of the dignified type made after a design from Philippe et Gaston is of chiffon velvet in a diversified arrangement of drapery. The skirt cut in the latest model, with waves from hip, is fitted at one side in a narrow underskirt of silver lame. The needle work on this dress is an original conception of orange blossoms in chenille, silver thread and small brilliants that give the effects of dew drops on snowy flowers. The yoke and the sleeves, which are long, are cut in one, and the veil of old point hangs over a plain train of the velvet.

Plain Ivory Satin.

Still another gown for the bride of stature and dignified bearing is built of plain ivory satin. This model is moderately short all around and has an even hem. The front and back are flat, the sides gathered to form bouffant panels. The long sleeves are of the satin, and the square train which hangs from the shoulders is untrimmed except at the edge, which is outlined with small pearls. A design of orange blossoms, embroidered in pearls, picked out with occasional small brilliants, trims the deep V-neck and widens into a panel down the front of the dress. The bandeau is made of a single row of orange blossoms on a fillet of pearls and diamonds and the veil of Brussels net is hemmed with a line of pearls.

These three gowns are typical of the more formal wedding dress now in vogue, presenting new materials of the more elaborate kind. Lame is another of the fashionable fabrics, shown in some of the most brilliant costumes, and the very latest and most luxurious of these stuffs, lame chiffon plush, which is a brocade of the plush on a supple lame foundation, is very rich and beautiful.

Very different in type of wedding gown is that designed for a young bride. Several adorable little gowns of this sort are shown from different houses of importance, so lovely that the designers seem to have a genuine pleasure in the doing. The very latest thing in materials is a moire taffeta, pure white, the wavy pattern of the weave showing faintly but on a ground that is supple, light as a feather and having a bright sheen. A chic model made after Vionnet has a somewhat wide skirt and plain, fitted bodice, cut round at the neck and with long sleeves. The skirt is plain in front and has at each side a full-length gathered panel of tulle on which are sewn from top to bottom narrow ruffles of tulle. This youthful wedding dress has no train, and the tulle veil drawn close about the face with a little wreath of orange blossoms is full and crisp. The bride for whom this dainty gown is designed will carry a large bouquet of orange blossoms and lilies of the valley and will wear a string of small pearls.

Taffeta Also Shown.

Taffeta is shown in several wedding dress models from important houses, especially in this young-bride type. It is combined with tulle in some very successful designs, making an ensemble that is fresh and airy and flower-like. Taffeta lends itself particularly well to the picture gown and dressmakers find the fashioning of this type of dress very pleasing. A Vionnet model in which taffeta is used is made rather long, with full gathered skirt lengthened to the ankles by a wide band of tulle. The bodice of this gown is plain, with normal belt line, and the yoke and sleeves in one are made of the tulle. Medallions of pearls in an orange blossom pattern are attached in a row several inches apart down one side of the bodice and the skirt, and the veil of tulle, with an orange blossom bandeau, hangs very full to the bottom of the skirt, enveloping the slender figure like a fleecy cloud.

Some of the new models even in the youthful style are puffed, but these are extreme and appear more suitable for formal evening wear than for a wedding gown. Lovely crops de chine and marquisette gowns are shown and become very well a certain type of woman, and here to distinctly feminine this season. The real lace are much in demand, and the bride who has a legacy of old lace is not far from it.

Although negligees appear to be more varied both in styling and fabric than heretofore, certain models combining simplicity with richness seem to trend in favor.

C. of C. Target For Grievances

Every Sharpshooter Blazes Away. Says President of Poughkeepsie Chamber—Many Matters Considered by Hudson Valley Chamber.

Every sharpshooter with a grievance picks the Chamber of Commerce as his target and blazes away, declared Alexander C. Dow, president of the Poughkeepsie Chamber of Commerce, Thursday afternoon before the quarterly meeting of the Hudson Valley Federated Chamber of Commerce in the Nelson House, Poughkeepsie.

The Poughkeepsie Chamber of Commerce is not the only one to be criticized, Dow declared, but the local organization gets its full share. No matter how aggressive and active such an organization may be, he said, it cannot escape the blame for anything that goes wrong in its city or community. Mr. Dow's remarks were taken by the members to mean that the local chamber has felt that criticism concerning Poughkeepsie's industrial conditions has been aimed in a veiled manner at the chamber and its executives.

Dow spoke in welcome to the members of the valley organization, following a welcoming speech by Mayor Frank B. Lovelace, who was introduced by S. Carlisle Goodrich, of Newburgh, president of the federation and toastmaster of the dinner.

General Milton F. Davis of Cornwall, former president of the federation, made a brief speech in answer to Poughkeepsie's welcome.

Barge canal terminals at Poughkeepsie, Newburgh, Kingston and Yonkers probably will not be completed within the next three years, declared William E. Fitzsimmons of Albany because the residents of the valley show little inclination to make use of them.

Each Chamber of Commerce in the valley should appoint a "key" man to promote the interests of his community and the valley as a whole, recommended Mr. Goodrich in his presidential report. The report endorsed another trans-river bridge at Hudson and suggested that each Chamber of Commerce support the state advertising campaign.

Tax on gasoline was endorsed by acclamation. The report of the committee on this tax was read by Thomas J. Comerford. The plan endorsed would be for the state to return 25 per cent of the tax to the counties wherein it is levied. The members also unanimously voted for the retention of the present auto license rates. Col. Frederick Stuart Groene will support the fight to have the gasoline tax passed, William E. Fitzsimmons, Albany, reported. The tax would go for highways.

George P. Hemstreet, Hastings, treasurer, reported $2,000 in the treasury. Beacon might have some prospect of obtaining construction of the Bear Mountain road if Poughkeepsie had not jumped in and obtained the new bridge. Mayor E. A. Macomber of Beacon said. The Beacon mayor also complained of the manner in which a mayor is treated by his constituents, alleging that he is more of a target in Beacon than in the Chamber of Commerce in Poughkeepsie.

Kingston was represented at the meeting by James A. Dwyer, Louis S. Coe, Charles E. Lasher and Thomas J. Comerford. Highland was represented by Howard E. Wilcox, Arthur B. Merritt, W. G. Hasbrouck.

SAVE APPLE TREES CANKER-INFECTED

Apple trees infected with hold-over fire blight, cankers, one of the serious problems of apple growers in some sections, can be saved and a large percentage of future infections prevented if a procedure worked out by investigators in the experiment station of the college of agriculture, University of Illinois, is followed carefully and systematically. It is announced by Dr. H. W. Anderson, associate chief of pomological pathology, who had charge of the investigations. The object of the procedure, which was worked out as the result of observations and experiments, is to save trees, not to control blossom and twig blight in the entire orchard.

In Calhoun, Illinois' most important apple producing county, and adjoining counties hold-over blight cankers are killing thousands of Willow Twig trees, and this variety, one of the most profitable to western Illinois growers, is doomed unless satisfactory methods of control are put to use, Doctor Anderson said.

The procedure which the experiment station workers have developed to save infected trees is as follows:

1. Plot the orchard, indicating on a diagram the exact location of all diseased trees and the number of cankers on each tree.

2. During the winter months cut out all cankers. Cankered limbs which do not contain enough live wood to warrant saving the entire limb should be cut off well below the canker. Cankers on the body of the tree or on large scaffold limbs should be cleaned out and treated. The orchardist should have special instructions for this work.

3. The cleaned canker and all tools used should be disinfected by using a solution of mercuric chloride, mercuric cyanide and glycerin. A convenient formula for this is:

(A) Three-tenths ounce of mercuric chloride in one pint of warm water.

(B) Three-tenths ounce of mercuric cyanide in one pint of water.

Add three pints of glycerin to each of (A) and (B) after they are in solution, then mix them together. Make up in wooden or granite ware containers.

4. Paint the wounded surfaces first with shellac and then, after they are dry, with gas tar or white lead paint.

5. Give special attention to following work:

During the growing season watch for any advance at the edge of the cankers. If any advance is seen, immediately clean out to perfectly healthy bark, disinfect very carefully and drop all diseased bark into a pail, remove from orchard and burn.

Best Strawberry Mulch Is Straw Horse Manure

A coarse or straw horse manure is best. Cow manure is too compact. It will mat down over the plants or form large clumps which do not protect the plants. The object of mulching is to keep the frost in the soil, thus preventing the lift of the frost and the settle of the thaw over and over through the winter and spring. The frost lifts the plants a little and the settling of the thaw pulls the soil away from the roots and leaves them exposed. The plants should not be completely covered, for they must have air through the winter. Therefore a coarse mulch which will not pack down too hard is best, says a writer in the Rural New Yorker. Some people make the mistake of using forest leaves, sawdust or very fine manure, thinking the plants must be fully covered. These pack too closely and smother a good many plants. We have found coarse millet or sodan grass cut before they seed very good for mulching.

Sprouts Are Worthless to Grow Cherry Trees

Cherry trees grown from sprouts which came up around old cherry trees would be practically the same as seedlings, and would not be likely to produce much fruit, and what fruit they might bear would be likely to be of inferior quality.

Probably, the old trees from which the sprouts were taken, were budded or grafted on seedling roots which are likely to seed up sprouts which will bear seedling fruit of poor quality. The seedlings frequently used for budding good kinds of cherries on are more likely to bear fruit of very good quality, but as a rule the fruit is rather poor. The seedling trees are not likely to bear much until they become very old, and even then they are usually shy bearers.

Protection From Rabbits

The trees should be protected from rabbits by means of tree guards of various types, either wood, wire, paper of various sorts, or even cornstalks, or straw or other screen wire, or the heavy galvanized hardware cloth of about one-fourth-inch mesh. The hardware cloth and screen guards should be about eighteen inches high, and pushed down a couple of inches into the soil. They may be left in place as long as protection is needed.

Glacial Periods

The ice age occurred at the beginning of the Pleistocene period. During this ice age there occurred several glacial periods marked by the extension of the ice sheets, separated by several interglacial periods marked by partial disappearance of the ice.

Cobb Will Return to Game This Year

Augusta, Ga., Jan. 28 (AP)—Ty Cobb today announced he would return to baseball this year.
The former manager of the Detroit Tigers said he was "going back for one more big year" after having been undrafted by Commissioner Landis of charges brought by "Dutch" Leonard, but that he had not decided where he would play.
Cobb added that he did not want to say that his last game had been played while he was under a cloud of suspicion and that he felt he was "honor bound" to get back into baseball.

Fable. Once there was an office man who didn't think he could make money with chickens.

Radiocast Opera
'Il Trovatore'

Chicago, Jan. 28 (AP)—Twenty-seven radio stations will be linked tonight for the broadcasting of another performance by the Chicago Civic Opera Company from the stage of the Auditorium Theatre—the last act
(the famous "prison scene" from "Il Trovatore").

The same elaborate equipment employed last Friday for the nation-wide radio-cast of "Faust" will be used tonight, 15 microphones leading to a "mixing panel" backstage, through it to toll boards, and thence to thousands of miles of telephone wires which will carry the Verdi music to the 27 stations.

Cyrena Van Gordon, Claudio Muzio and Richard Bonnell will sing the principal roles.

Radio listeners are particularly favored by tonight's broadcast, inasmuch as the performance itself is not open to the public, being given only for the guarantors of the opera company.

The broadcast, which will include the portion of the opera in which the "Miserere" and "Home to Our Mountains" are sung, will start at 9:30 p.
m. central time.

LAST NIGHT
on the RADIO

Reception last night was good, but not so good but that it might have been better. Tuning was rather broad, and the best of too many stations was very great. WJZ, WGY and WEAF gave sufficient variety to entertain anyone, and the Columbi-Tenn., Kiwanis Club put on a show from WMS at Nashville that one did not have to be a Kiwanian to enjoy. WFBM had a program by the Lions Club and WGN had a Welsh male choir that was worth listening to.

Southern and western stations were strong. WGBH at Clearwater, and WDAE at Tampa were notable Florida stations.

WLV, the Crowley station at Cincinnati, must have slipped a cog early in the evening as it was using about 410 meters. Later it got back to 422, its proper place.

WBBM was coming in strong from Chicago before 9 o'clock.

Apparently a new station, the call letters of which were not heard clearly, was broadcasting from Waukegan, Ill.

Montreal may have been on the air, but since WOK hopped in on about 407 meters there is a fine mix up and Montreal, Havana, Minneapolis and a few others are reduced to a composite squeal.

Through a network of more than twenty stations, two distinguished members of the Metropolitan Opera Company, and a cellist who is one of the world's best known instrumental artists will present the program of the third 1927 radio concert of the Victor Talking Machine Company this evening. These artists are Giovanni Martinelli, tenor, and Miss Lucretia Bori, soprano, of the Metropolitan Opera, and Pablo Casals, cellist. They will be assisted by the Victor Salon Orchestra under the direction of Nathaniel Shilkret. Beginning at 9 p. m., eastern standard time, the program will be heard over a chain of stations affiliated with the "red" and the "blue" networks of the National Broadcasting Company.

Strength of Rings
Some elaborate calculations backed by experiments have been made to determine the "breaking strength" of rings. It appears that a ring of double material like malleable iron will be pulled out into the form of a long link before it breaks, and that the ultimate strength of the ring is virtually independent of its diameter.

Fracture finally occurs as the result of almost pure tension, and the resistance to breaking is a little less than twice that of a rod of the same cross-section subjected to a straight pull.

As the ring increases in diameter there appears to be a slight approach toward equality, with double the strength of a bar. Thus a 2-inch ring made of three-quarter inch iron broke at 12 1/2 tons, a 4-inch ring at 19 1/2 tons and a 6-inch ring at 26 tons, the strength of a bar of the same metal being 10 1/2 tons.

Explaining Small Checks
Checks may be drawn for less than $1, though there is a federal law stating that they are not lawful. Many individuals and even governments make checks for an amount less than $1, but they are not intended to circulate, being only intended to pay the amount of the check to the person the check is made payable to. A check is not lawful money and consequently cannot be passed as lawful money. A check is a personal credit instrument used in place of money.

DAIRY

SOME GRAIN IS NEEDED BY COW

Though rich in food elements, alfalfa hay must be supplemented with a grain mixture if the dairy herd is to be kept in good condition and at the same time produce a large amount of milk. This is the conclusion drawn by the dairy department of the New Jersey State College of Agriculture, New Brunswick, from experiments and farm experiences in New Jersey and elsewhere.

In one instance, a dairyman of this state claimed repeatedly that he could secure just as high a production from a ration of good alfalfa hay and first-class corn silage as from one containing also a liberal amount of grain concentrates. Investigation showed, however, that he was giving the cows large amounts of very choice alfalfa hay and was not forcing them to eat it up clean, but allowing them to pick out only the leaves and tender parts.

The left-over stems were fed to horses. This dairyman failed to appreciate that the cows were not eating alfalfa hay, but chiefly alfalfa leaves, which contain nearly as much crude protein as gluten feed, and not much more fiber than oats.

All the concentrates in a ration were replaced by alfalfa hay in a trial at the New Jersey experiment station.
A ration consisting of 175 pounds of alfalfa hay and 35 pounds of corn sil-lage was compared with a ration containing 8 pounds of concentrates rich in protein, fed with corn silage and corn stover. This latter ration was far from ideal for it contained no legume hay. It produced, however, over 20 per cent more milk and butterfat than the alfalfa hay and silage ration.

In a six-year test at the Illinois experiment station it was found that cows fed some grain in addition to silage and alfalfa hay stayed in better condition than those fed silage and alfalfa hay alone.

Give Plenty of Feed to Increase Yield of Milk
There is a tendency to decrease the amount of feed fed as the cost mount.
The proper thing to do is to select cows with sufficient capacity to become profitable and then increase the amount of feed.

Experience has shown that it is not the highly concentrated rations that make for the greatest production. It is the fresh, partially digested, soft, palatable feeds, with a low crude fiber content—such as grass—that give the best results.

A mixture of different kinds of hay is important, especially with a high-producing cow, in order that all the nutrients may be provided. Hay should be cut before feeding and the different varieties mixed. Grain is combined with this and plant minerals added. If properly mixed, this feed receives the same treatment in the paunch as hay. This aids digestion and lightens the process of mastication.

Growing Various Crops
to Provide Dairy Feeds
The following amount of home-grown feed should be provided for each cow for a period of one year:

4 tons silage if as many as 10 head of cows are fed.
1 ton good legume hay—alfalfa, red clover, soy bean, cow pea, etc. If no silage is provided, 2 tons legume hay should be grown for each cow.
10 bushels corn.
10 bushels oats.
Plenty of good pasture from frost to frost.

If the above amount of feed is grown on the farm for each cow it will be necessary to buy only about five bags cottonseed meal and three bags wheat bran in order to have ration filling the requirements outlined above.

Addition of Dried Yeast to Normal Calf Ration
In tests at the Minnesota experiment station in which 47 calves were fed, C. H. Eckles, V. M. Williams, J.
W. Wilbur, L. S. Palmer and H. M.
Henderson found that the addition of dried yeast to normal rations, including whole or skim milk, grain and hay, did not increase the rate of gain from two weeks to 120 days of age.

In several experiments with rats, from 15 to 20 per cent of yeast in the ration was required for the production of normal growth. Increasing this amount did not have an additional stimulating effect. A calf ration was fed to rats, with and without yeast, with unsatisfactory results in both cases, due probably to an excess of bulk.

Box Stall for Bull
A box stall is the best place to house a bull, although he should be allowed more exercise than he will get by just tramping around in a small
pen. Turn him out into a well paddock each day or give him the freedom of a barn lot to roam around and exercise. The ordinary ration of hay, silage and a small amount of grain is suitable for him. Silage will have no ill effects upon his person, although he should not be made to eat upon silage straight.

Cream for Whipping
For cream to whip satisfactorily it should have 30 per cent of fat. A separating machine may be used to produce such cream, but if the cream is obtained by hand it is impossible to get more than 25 or 30 per cent of fat.

All Cooks Look Alike

As the hungry man, but what a sad disappointment when the "kitchen queen" quite suddenly and the table looks anything but enticing to a social appetite. When in doubt as to what to do, use The Free Lunch's "Help Wanted" Card—West Department.

Borrow your jewelry in for repair, cleaning and enhancement. A clasp repaired may save a necklace, a mounting renewed may secure a gem. A cleaning lends new life.

Box Stall for Bull
A box stall is the best place to house a bull, although he should be allowed more exercise than he will get by just tramping around in a small
pen. Turn him out into a well paddock each day or give him the freedom of a barn lot to roam around and exercise. The ordinary ration of hay, silage and a small amount of grain is suitable for him. Silage will have no ill effects upon his person, although he should not be made to eat upon silage straight.
